COUNSELING, DISABILITY SUPPORT, AND STUDENT WELLNESS

Counseling, disability support, and student wellness (CDSW) offers a variety of services to the Missouri S&T campus community including individual, group, and crisis counseling; consultation; programming on many topics; the Van Matre resource center of self-help materials; the employee assistance program; and assistance for students with disabilities.

Missouri S&T’s disability support services ensures that students with disabilities have equal access to academic classrooms and curricula by coordinating services and academic support. Accommodations can make a difference in academic success.

Personal and career counseling is provided on a time-limited basis to Missouri S&T students and benefit-eligible employees. Services, which are provided by licensed counselors and psychologists, are free and confidential within ethical and legal limitations. Concerns commonly addressed in personal counseling include self-exploration, college adjustment, family issues, feelings of depression and anxiety, interpersonal issues, communication skills, and self-esteem. Relaxation strategies and methods to cope with the many stressors of daily living may also be addressed. Overcoming test anxiety or procrastination, improving self and time management, and developing other skills related to success at Missouri S&T may be a focus in counseling.

Individuals wondering about their majors and career options may benefit from career counseling, which typically explores personal and professional goals and how to achieve them.

Group counseling is an interactive, supportive, and interpersonal form of therapy. Counseling offers several groups based on campus need and interest. Some current and past groups are Asperger’s support, family issues, ADD/ADHD support group, and test anxiety.

CDSW actively promotes student learning and professional development through its outreach programming services. Staff members offer programs to campus groups on topics such as teamwork, stress management, conflict resolution, and time management.

The Van Matre resource center, a self-help library, contains a wide range of reading materials. Topics range from communication skills to parenting, career exploration to dealing with depression, anxiety, and abuse. Materials are available for checkout.

The employee assistance program offers a variety of services such as counseling, consultation, organizational development, and programming for faculty and staff. For more information, call 573-341-4211 or visit http://counsel.mst.edu and http://dss.mst.edu.

Student Wellness

Student wellness promotes healthy behaviors to create a campus environment conducive to academic, professional, and personal success. Wellness is an active, continuing process of becoming more conscious of and making choices towards a fulfilling and thriving life. S&T’s Student Wellness program takes an environmental approach to address the well-being of the campus community because individuals are influenced both positively and negatively by the behaviors of others and the environment in which they live.

Student wellness topic areas include: alcohol and other drug prevention; stress management and mental health promotion; healthy eating and physical activity promotion; sexual health; and sexual violence prevention. Student wellness, along with assistance from the Joe’s PEERS (the campus health and wellness peer educators), provides workshops covering various health and wellness topics; social norms and health marketing campaigns; special events; information tables; on-line education; and one-on-one wellness consultations.

The STEP UP! bystander intervention program is one example of a student wellness initiative. It is a behavioral and educational program for college students that aims to:

• Raise awareness of helping behaviors
• Increase motivation to help
• Develop skills and confidence when responding to problems or concerns
• Ensure the safety and well-being of self and others
